NOTES FROM THE POTOMAC

Editor’s Note: Doug Lawrence authored these “Notes.”

2017 Appropriations—In early May, Congress approved the 2017 appropriations omnibus bill. The bill rejected spending cuts proposed by President Trump in March and instead provided an overall increase in spending for discretionary spending programs at USDA. NRCS’s Conservation Operations account received a $14 million increase compared to last year, bringing total funding to $864 million. The Watershed Rehabilitation Program was funded at $12 million. In a bit of a surprise, the Watershed and Flood Prevention Operations account was funded for the first time since fiscal year 2010 at $150 million.

2018 Budget—The House Republican leadership is expected to announce guidelines for the 2018 budget the week of June 25th, 2017. Some observers anticipate that the 2018 budget guidelines could lead to a cut in Farm Bill funding as part of the effort to offset expected increases in Defense spending and decreases in revenue associated with proposed tax cuts.

The budget resolution, which sets the overall funding target for the Appropriations Committees, could also be used to set the stage for tax reform, one of the Administration’s priorities. It is anticipated that the budget reconciliation process, currently being used by Senate Republicans in their effort to pass reforms to the Affordable Care Act, will also be used for tax reform. The advantage for the Republicans in using the budget reconciliation process is that it requires only 51 votes to pass the Senate rather than the normal 60 votes.

Farm Bill—House Agriculture Committee Chairman, Mike Conaway, (R-TX), is expecting cuts to the Farm Bill funding. If the House and Senate can agree on Farm Bill funding cuts, there is a chance that the 2018 Farm Bill could join tax reform as part of the budget reconciliation process. Rep. Glenn Thompson, (R-PA), chair of the House Agriculture’s nutrition subcommittee, has concerns about including the Farm Bill in the budget reconciliation process and said “The farm bill is about the rural economy. I don’t think it should be used as some kind of trading chip in this process.”

On Thursday, June 29th, the Senate Agriculture Committee continues hearings in preparation for developing the 2018 Farm Bill. This week’s hearing is focused on conservation programs and forestry. The NRCS Deputy Chief for Programs, Jimmy Bramblett, will be one of several witnesses testifying.

USDA Reorganization—On May 11th, 2017, Secretary Perdue announced plans to reorganize USDA. Details regarding the full reorganization can be found here: https://www.usda.gov/our-agency/reforming-usda. The reorganization plan creates a new “Farm Production and Conservation” Mission Area that includes NRCS, FSA, and the Risk Management Agency. Under the reorganization plan, the undersecretary for Natural Resources and Environment will continue to oversee the U.S. Forest Service. In addition, the reorganization plan calls for the NRCS Chief and the FSA Administrator to review office locations and administrative functions within 60 days of May 11th, 2017, and report to the Office of the Secretary regarding opportunities to co-locate offices and share administrative services, consistent with existing authorities.

Personnel Changes—The Trump Administration has moved more slowly to fill political appointee positions than the Obama or Bush administrations. This is particularly true in the Department of Agriculture where none of the dozen or so political appointments requiring Senate approval have been filled. USDA Secretary Sonny Perdue has said that he doesn’t expect a deputy secretary or the undersecretaries to be on board before September. The White House has given six names to the FBI and Office of Government Ethics for clearance, but the candidates are still waiting to be cleared.

About a month ago there were reports that Steve Censky, CEO of the American Soybean Association, would be nominated to the USDA Deputy Secretary position. In addition, current Iowa Agriculture Secretary, Bill Northey, was expected to be the nominee for the newly created Undersecretary for Farm Production and Conservation. Indiana Agriculture Department Director Ted McKinney was expected to be nominated as Undersecretary for Trade and Foreign Agricultural Affairs. Finally, Sam Clovis, who has served on the USDA transition team, is being considered as the next Undersecretary for Research, Education, and Economics. The news that Clovis, who does not have a science background, could be nominated to be the USDA's Chief Scientist has raised concerns.

Retirement Benefits—The President’s budget for 2018, released in May, called for a cut in federal employee retirement benefits. The cuts include the elimination of cost of living adjustments under the Federal Employees Retirement System (FERS), and reducing the COLA by 0.5 percent for Civil Service Retirement System employees. It was estimated the changes would save $524 million in fiscal 2018 and $41.8 billion over 10 years. In addition, the President’s budget called for increasing employees' contributions to FERS by 1 percentage point a year for six years which could reduce spending by $1.7 billion next year and $72.1 billion by fiscal 2027. Other changes could include basing the value of employees' retirement benefits on their highest five years of earnings, instead of the current highest three years, and the elimination of supplemental payments for FERS employees before Social Security kicks in at age 62, beginning in 2018.

The 2018 federal retiree COLA will be announced in mid-October 2017. The President's budget reaffirms the Trump administration's intent to give federal employees a 2018 pay raise of 1.9%. Congress could override the pay raise; however, in recent years this has not happened.

The cost of living adjustment (COLA) for Social Security recipients and federal retirees has only averaged about 1% since 2012. Based on Consumer Price Index (CPI) data through April of 2017, the Senior Citizens League estimates that the Social Security COLA for 2018 will be about 2.1% as reported in Investment News. The Senior Citizens League also estimates that Social Security beneficiaries and federal retirees have lost about a third of their purchasing power since 2000. This is because the costs of items more often purchased by older people have significantly outstripped annual inflation increases in their retirement benefits.

The St. Lawrence River is at an historic high level. Cottages are flooded, septic systems are overtopped, and most boat docks are under water. Marinas and other businesses are hurting, and shipping on the seaway is down to a crawl. Is it related to climate change? Does our world require numerous natural disasters to wake us from deep economic driven sleep? This one doesn’t have a name like Katrina or tropical storm David, but there is widespread economic pain. It has never happened before, at least not since records have been kept.

Close to home, our docks are under water, and flooding is knee deep in the boathouse. It’s a minor inconvenience for us, but the Great Lakes basin has serious troubles. It will probably dry out in the Fall and be forgotten until next time. How easily we forget natural disasters, though. My American Indian friends say, “Mother Nature has a fever.”

What can we do? Building higher docks and changing building codes are reactionary but may be necessary. Next Spring the water could be at an historic low, closing marinas and impacting shipping. I built higher docks for the Summer. Will I need longer and deeper docks for the Spring? Long term we need a better solution. We need to stay informed and send the right message to our local, state and national governing bodies.

As retired conservation professionals, we are in a more informed position than many. We need to stay in touch with each other and support organizations such as the Soil and Water Conservation Society. ARCSE members and SWCS are the best sources of unvarnished truths about our natural world. I am privileged to be a part of both organizations. Hope to see many of you in Madison, WI.

A Wonder Woman of Agrostology

A segment about the movie Wonder Woman on the June 11th episode of CBS Sunday Morning inspired this month’s history item. The creator of the Wonder Woman comic book character was influenced in part by the suffragettes who demonstrated for equal voting rights for women. That reminded me of discovering a suffragette during my work as historian of SCS.

So what about this story made me think of something that happened in my work as historian? Here is how the discovery happened. The Soil Conservation Service, through its nurseries and plant materials program, collected and tested plants, both native and exotic, for their conservation uses. No one had done this before. The need for guides for identification soon became obvious, and the staff commenced with mimeographed lists for use in the field. In 1939, USDA published Native Woody Plants of the United Sates: Their Erosion-Control and Wildlife Values, by an SCS biologist, William R. Van Dersal. The grasses had generally been covered by Albert Spear Hitchcock’s Manual of Grasses of the United States, which USDA published in 1935, the year of his death. SCS staff used Hitchcock’s grass identifications in writing USDA bulletins on the grasses useful for conservation.

Agnes Chase, a Wonder Woman of Agrostology
Field staff sent in plants to be examined, and SCS grazing and range specialists enthusiastically sought as-yet-unidentified grasses and submitted them for identification and testing. Sometimes they would receive a note back from the Washington office saying that the grass was being sent to Agnes Chase for identification. After reading a few of these letters, I wanted to know who Agnes Chase was. She had been Hitchcock’s assistant, had succeeded him, and had published among other things a revision of the manual of grasses. With no college credentials or formal botany training, she became the authority on grasses in the United States. Those wishing to know more about her life can consult this site, the Wikipedia entry, and other sites on the internet:

https://books.google.com/books?id=CfGHM9KU7aEC&lpg=PA147&dq=alice%20chase%20%20usda&pg=PA146#v=onepage&q=alice%20chase%20usda&f=false

So how does this connect with the Wonder Woman segment? Well, she was a suffragette who was jailed in 1918 for a demonstration at the White House. She refused bail and instigated a hunger strike. Discoveries of links like these add fun to the study of history.

Ron Moreland Report. Ron and Barb just returned from two plus weeks exploring Quebec Province. French immersion! Montreal was a favorite. We walked miles through neighborhoods with pockets of ethnicity and hidden French bistros, and a fabulous Chagall exhibit. Quebec City was beautiful, though a bit touristy. We concentrated on learning about the amazing history of the area. We then rented a car through Charlevoix, with its lush sheep, dairy, cheese country, the Route de les Montagnes, and seeing whales on Sanguenay Fjord. In the Charlevoix area most only speak French, so it was good that Barb is pretty proficient with that.

Ken Cookson Report. We had two very enjoyable trips recently. The first was a week in Santa Fe. We have been there several times and never tire of the beauty and things to do there. We went to the Valles Caldera National Preserve, one of the largest in the US. We were entertained in a Prairie Dog Town. They are active. We saw one lone elk. We were told the herd didn’t usually come down out of the woods during the day. From there we were on the Jemez Mountain National Scenic Byway. This is beautiful country.

We went to Los Alamos and learned more about the Manhattan Project and the building of the Atomic Bomb. There is a very interesting history of Los Alamos even before the Manhattan Project. The location of Los Alamos is pretty remote, and it was not easy to get to, which made it desirable. It is hard to imagine being able to keep a place like this secret, but they did.

We did manage to find a little time to do some wine tasting at a few wineries. This is always fun.

The second trip was to Sedona, AZ and the magnificent red rocks in the area. This is an area we always look forward to seeing. There are numerous rock formations with interesting names, like Bell Rock, Coffee Pot, Cathedral Rock and more. We stayed at The Ridge on Sedona Golf Resort in Oak Creek. The morning drive into Sedona is spectacular with the sun behind us and Bell Rock and other red rocks looming in front of us.
We went to Jerome one afternoon. This is a very old mining town that no longer does mining but has become an artist community. In the last few years several wineries now have tasting rooms.

Steve Black Report. I spent a week back at my farm in southwest Illinois in early June doing my normal maintenance and other tasks needed around the house and buildings. Some areas of the state were still wet from the heavy rains and planting was behind schedule for soybeans. The corn on my farm was planted in early June and probably grew 16 inches during the six days I was there and had a deep green color. I have used conservation tillage on the farm for many years along with some no-till for soybeans, even though the land is relatively flat. I have not seen a moldboard-plowed field around there for probably 40 years as most farmers now use some form of conservation tillage and residue management. Soil testing on a small grid and variable rate nutrient application has also become very common in the area. Will go back again in the fall to help with crop harvest.

I built the split rail fence in the picture to go along with the old farm house on the property that is 194 years old; it was built in 1823 by my great, great grandmother.

Greetings to all our fellow retirees across the Nation! Our wet season is finally winding down, and we are totaling near the 2nd or 3rd wettest seasons of record. I have kept a close look at how the Oroville Dam Spillway repair work has been progressing, and lots of work has been accomplished with much more still to be done.

The following two YouTube videos provide a good update on what is going on and how things are being done. The big focus now is on removal of the lower portion of the concrete primary spillway and improving the foundation for the new structure by filling all voids with dental grout and then roller compacted concrete. Blasting is being used to break up the remaining portions of the lower spillway to be removed.

Monthly Lunches and Breakfasts: California retirees continue to have a monthly luncheon and breakfast for all who can make it. With summer being a busy time for many retirees, the groups are smaller than normal but these opportunities to get together are always enjoyed by those who can make it. Four of us were at the recent June 7th Luncheon as shown below.

California has added some new NRCS retirees to our E-mail Distribution List who have either recently moved to California or worked previously in California but were not in the loop until now.

John Stierna, retired NRCS Economist, NHQ and his wife Ruth are now residing in Lake County, CA. John looks forward to keeping up with what is going on with California now and joining us for a monthly lunch when he can. John worked with a number of our California Staff who had dealings with NHQ.

Dave Patterson, retired Biologist, currently resides in Georgia but had multiple Biologist positions in California including Area Biologist and State Wetlands Biologist. He also was the State Biologist in Oregon before retiring. Dave has maintained contact with multiple California Staff, and I was recently able to get his contact information so he is on our list and can keep up with California retiree news!

Reina Rogers, Retired District Conservationist who lives in Greenville, CA has also been added to our list and now enjoys keeping up with California retiree news.

Tom Smith, Retired Soil Mechanics Engineer continues to enjoy working and doing well in the private sector as the owner and president of RiverSmith Engineering, Inc. Tom’s work specializes in water-related, environmental and restoration work, with an emphasis on rivers, streams, levees and small dams. Here is a link to information about Riversmith Engineering: https://sites.google.com/site/riversmithengineering/home
Tom recently combined his work with pleasure in a get-together with John Hanes, retired Engineer who worked on California’s Design Staff. Here is the note and three photos Tom shared with me about his visit with John.

“Hi Bill, Just got home from a project in Redwood Valley near Ukiah. On the way back we went through Boonville to see John Hanes at his Art Gallery—a beautiful building and a great collection of art. John himself looks great and we had a good visit. John’s son Ward designed the building and it’s located on the main street in Boonville (maybe the only street in Booneville). You can’t miss it.

If any of our retirees across the country are out visiting Northern California, I know John would love to have you stop by his Art Gallery in Boonville, say hello and see the wonderful art he has there. Here are the pictures Tom shared.

The Idaho retirees held their last lunch for the 2016-17 year on May 25th. The get-together was not very well attended. Just like a bunch of retirees, they have scattered in all directions I suspect trying to beat the summer crowds after school is out. Those in attendance were Gene and Bev Crisman, Darrell Gallup and his son Darrell, Rob Fredricksen, Paul Malone, John...
Kendrick, and Jim Cornwell. We will return to meeting regularly on September 28th. There should be some interesting stories and adventures to report after the long summer break.

IOWA

Mark Jensen, ARCSE Representative
Email: amjens1@gmail.com

On June 2nd, I went with Mark McCurdy, Christian Osborn, and Jean Sandstrom, all engineers in the State Office, to West Union to attend a retirement open house for Neal Struthers, Civil Engineer in Area 3. Neal retired on May 29th after 37 years with NRCS in Iowa. Neal has had a hand in the design and construction of countless structures throughout the state, but especially in northeast Iowa. He has been keeping busy the last few weeks getting his Morgan horses ready for a trip to the Black Hills. One horse that he plans to ride a lot hasn’t had a saddle on its back yet. I told him that we’re looking forward to some good pictures! In addition to working with his horses, he plans to attend a class reunion in late June and has a nephew getting married on July 2nd. It seems as though this retirement thing can sure keep a feller busy!

While I was at Neal’s retirement party, I had the opportunity to see a few other northeast Iowa retirees. Rick Cordes and Ed Andrews keep their minds sharp by continuing to do some part time work, mostly writing nutrient management plans. It was also good to get to talk to Linda Schmitt and Rhonda Aysworth.

Rhonda and Doug Aysworth, Linda Schmitt and her friend Lee, along with other friends spent a couple of weeks in Homosassa Springs, FL, in February. They said they had a lot of fun golfing, playing cards, etc., and the weather was great. Linda and Lee went to Los Alamos, NM, for a week in April to visit Lee’s son and family. Part of their travels was on the Turquoise Trail National Scenic Byway. They toured the little town of Madrid, NM. This town originated as a mining town, then became a ghost town, then sprang up again in the 60s as a lot of hippies settled there. This little town is where the movie “Wild Hogs” was filmed. Linda also told me that her grandson graduated from North Fayette Valley High School this spring. He will be going to Coe College where he will play football for the Kohawks this fall.

Volney Smith has been one of the faithful regulars with the Wednesday morning breakfast group that meets at IHOP in Des Moines. In mid-June, he pulled up stakes and moved to western Iowa. He is now living in the Elm Crest Senior Living Community in Harlan. Volney, we’ll miss you at breakfast but hope you enjoy your new home and surroundings in Harlan.

Thanks to Dick Hall who sent in the following: “Retirees from the (Northwest Iowa) area get together for breakfast the third Wednesday morning of each month at the HyVee restaurant at the Southern Hills Mall in Sioux City. We would welcome anyone who would like to join us. Our group is small, normally only 5-8, with some retirees and some spouses of former retirees. Consistent members attending have been Guy Hempey, Judy Claus, Jeri Ducomun, Betty Jahn and Dick and Marian Hall. Marian and I will be celebrating our 62nd wedding anniversary the middle of July.” Congratulations Dick and Marian on your upcoming anniversary!

Tom Oswald told me that in late April he had dinner with the former planning staff at Fletcher’s Restaurant in Ankeny. Those who were at the “reunion” included Tom and his wife Pat, Roger and Donita Link, Steve Manternach, Christina and Patrick Murphy, Mark McCurdy, and Alan Lauver. He said they had a good time “catching up.”

Ron Hersom reported that his garage, eve troughs, grill, front door area, etc., were being invaded by wasps. They may not be much of a bother, but I know from experience that they can sting! Ron found an environmentally friendly remedy that has worked for him. He says to simply take a medium brown paper bag, stuff it with plastic grocery bags just enough to fill it out, then tie the open end and hang it near the area where the wasps are active. The wasps think the bag is a hornet’s nest and will leave within a day. He said he’s tried it and has had no wasps for over a month.

Recently we have been saddened by the loss of a couple of our retirees. Monica Mae Monk, 48, of Polk City passed away on May 29th, 2017, surrounded by her loving family at the Taylor Hospice House in Des Moines. Monica had fought a courageous battle with cancer for over four years. She maintained a positive attitude and a will to survive throughout her fight and certainly was an inspiration to all of us who knew her. Marlys Jean McAninch, 91, Cedar Falls, passed away May 30th, 2017, at the Westview Care Center in Indianola. Marlys was the wife of Bart McAninch, a District Conservationist in Iowa for many years. Bart passed away in January of this year.

Spring arrived in Kansas and I was anxious to plant manta villas next to a new trellis that I had purchased. Planting day finally arrived, and the trellis was put in place and two manta villas were planted at its base. While I was admiring a job well done, my husband was taking a break and was reading the manta villa container. Then he called out, “Honey, you have a problem.” Sure enough I had purchased “mounding” manta villas instead of “vining.” Oh well, the manta villas are blooming nicely, and I can still enjoy the trellis even though it’s not covered in blooms.

Not hearing any news from members, I am highlighting a couple items from our Kansas SCS/NRCS Retiree Newsletter. James Fitzgerald (former Civil Engineer in the Engineering Design Section in the Kansas State Office) related several hobbies that I found unusual and interesting. In the mid-1990s he started researching the Oregon Trail that crossed the Fitzgerald farm. During the next eleven years he dug up many artifacts on the Fitzgerald farmstead and on the Oregon Trail ending up with eight 8-place tables of artifacts. The Kansas Historical Foundation in Topeka has looked at some of his artifacts and determined that they have scientific and research value.

Jim has also collected railroad date nails and old barbed wire. Before 1880, when manufactured barbed wire was not available, a contractor near Silver Lake built new barbed wire fences for farmers by stringing No. 9 smooth wire on posts, followed by a crew using special equipment to place barbs on the wire. He ended up with a sample of this barbed wire. Barbed wire made history by making the local people stop using the Oregon Trail to travel on and use township roads with their sharp 90-degree corners.

Mary Shaffer (former Public Affairs Specialist) is travelling, volunteering, and enjoying retirement. She went on a tour to New York City, visiting museums, dining at famous restaurants, and seeing two shows, one of which was “Tuck,” a stage play written by a Salina native. In late winter she was honored by Kansas for Agriculture in the classroom with the Golden Apple Award for her work and support during her time with NRCS and as a volunteer after she retired. She recently has completed six years as a trustee on the Salina Education Foundation, serving on several committees and as chair of the board of trustees. Mary enjoys travelling throughout Kansas with her husband, Phil. Last winter they visited several reservoirs scouting for eagles.

We are saddened to report several deaths. Robert “Bob” Griffen, former Kansas State Conservationist, passed away April 15th, 2017, in Pocatello, ID. Bob retired in 1980. It was after his first wife, Merle, passed away that he moved to Pocatello, ID, and married a longtime friend, Jerry Younkin, who survives. Larry Sabata, retired Soil Scientist from the Manhattan Area Office Staff, passed away April 25th, 2017. Larry served 39 years before his retirement in November 2016. His wife, Lois, survives. Richard “Dick” MacKinnon passed away May 13th, 2017. Dick retired in 2012 as an Engineering Technician (Civil) on the Technical Staff located in Dodge City, KS. He is survived by his wife, Kay. Alan L. Wattner, former Soil Conservation Technician in the Kingman Field Office, passed away May 19th, 2017. Alan retired in 2006. His wife, Lila, preceded him in death.

Well, it’s been a quiet few months for the Massachusetts retirees. Summer has sprung upon us, and we’ve already had two official heat waves. We heap great praise upon whoever it was who invented central air conditioning. Each month we receive a notice from the electric company that we are using more electricity than our average neighbors, and the hot weather ensures that we keep that record intact.

We note the passing of Arthur L. Verdi, retired State Administrative Officer, on June 20th, 2017 at the age of 94. Arthur was born in 1922 in Albania and came to the United States at the age of six, just in time to enjoy the Great Depression. Arthur started as a photographer for SCS using those big Speed Graflex cameras that weighed a ton. Arthur worked his way up the administrative ladder to become SAO, upon the retirement of Charlie Brown. Art’s depression years had an effect on him, and he carefully shepherded all of the SCS pennies. He was noted for bringing home and repairing broken equipment so that it could be returned to service for some more years. Back in Arthur’s day as SAO, the office seldom closed for winter storms. In one blizzard after the snow was a foot deep, Frank Resides called the SAO and asked: “Arthur! Is it snowing on your side of the building?” Arthur agreed that it might be alright to let the troops go home at 3pm.

The Columbia area retirees met for their quarterly breakfast on May 10th at Denny’s in Columbia. Those in attendance included Robert Hummel, Neil and Margaret Randall, Ed and Judy Smith, Frank and Kay Miller, Gena Michelson, John Turner, Jerry Edwards, Mike Wells, Alan Wolfe, Dave Rastorfer and surprise guests from the great northeast of Missouri: Lynn Kilpatrick, Jim Stephens, Mack Ellis, Jim Henry and Bob Laird. The next breakfast will be at 8am on August 9th at Denny’s in Columbia.

Ross Braun: The St. Louis Science Center opened a permanent exhibition on agriculture, titled “GROW.” The exhibition covers one acre next to the main Science Center building and includes everything from DIY gardening to the latest in agricultural sciences. I volunteer on Saturdays and events, giving soil science presentations and teaching staff and interns about soil science. My soil health demonstration compares two samples of the same soil, one sample continuously no-till farmed since 1983 and the other conventionally tilled.

After six years of persistence, we captured the Smithsonian soil exhibition, “Dig-It! The Secrets of Soil.” The exhibition is on permanent loan to the St. Louis Science Center from the Smithsonian Institution and the Soil Science Society of America. Components of Dig-It! will be displayed on rotation in the GROW exhibition Pavilion. An Earth Day celebration for Dig-It! included NRCS representatives J.R. and Nancy Flores, Ron Collman, Bill Pauls (aka Menfro Man), Grant Butler, Charlie Rahm, Renee Cook and me.
What do you think? A career pays us to pursue things we believe in, and retirement is our opportunity to donate and pursue our passions. I am thrilled to be the upcoming president of the Professional Association of Therapeutic Horsemanship International, an organization that educates and certifies instructors, therapists, and establishments providing equine-based services for people with disabilities.

Gary Moreau: I will be giving mobility to 36 people in rural Guatemala from June 17-27 as part of the PET project.

Jim Rickman: We are still traveling a lot. On my bucket list is a visit to 100 countries, and I might make it. It will be close. We have trips planned to Iceland, Bali and Java, and some Eastern European countries through 2018. At my age you sort of hate to plan much further out than that. I still fish quite a bit and am going to Canada with my son next month to fish and am going trout fishing in Arkansas this month. Quail hunting has suffered some, but the past two years it has been very good in our area. I have a couple of bird dogs and plan to quail hunt quite a bit this coming year. I wrote a book, which has great potential. If you suffer from insomnia you should read it. My wife fell asleep after only a few pages. It is on Amazon, Encounters in the Rolling Plains of Texas. It starts out slow and gets slower. Our health continues to be good, and for that we are very thankful and feel blessed. I hope all my old friends in Missouri are faring well.

Alton Taylor: We will be in Arizona for July with our daughter. Vena’s health is best in years, but her memory is very short. But we are still on our own, moving about with some limits.

Lane Thurman: Hi everyone, I have some good news coming up—tomorrow is hopefully my last chemo treatment! After the treatment, a CT scan and a small colonoscopy will be done to determine if the tumor is gone, and hopefully it will all be over. This series of treatments has really taken it out of me. I didn’t know something like this could get you down so bad and make you so weak so fast, but it does. But maybe we have seen the last of the treatments. I haven’t been fishing since last fall and really miss that part of my life. But maybe that will also end soon and I will get to go back to my favorite sport. I haven’t even had the boat out in the water. Nancy is really taking good care of me, though. She tends to all of my needs, and I couldn’t ask for any more than what she does for me.

Dennis Shirk: Hello and Happy Father’s Day to all the fathers. We are camped in northern Boone County and farm sitting for our daughter so that the whole family could go to church camp down by Lebanon, MO. I did not get to go on our spring ride and campout as there was too much flood damage to hold the ride at Riversedge campground on the banks of the Black River at Lesterville, MO. I did get to go to a Christian cowboy meeting at Golden Hills camp ground at Raymondville, MO. It was great riding and very inspirational. I met many new Christian horse people. I’m doing well after my gall bladder surgery, and right now both of us have no major health issues. I consider us extremely blessed. See you all down the trail.

Jess Epple: (from near Muskogee, OK) Phyllis and I are doing well. Our land has received much rain this spring. A Soil Scientist would call it “Field Capacity.” It looks like a good year for many round hay bales. We are excited about our wildlife this spring. We counted about fifty wild turkey and several quail. However, we haven’t seen many rabbits. The Honey Springs Civil War Visitors Center and Battlefield area near Rentiesville, OK is open. It was the first “official” battle where African-Americans fought, Friday, July 17th, 1863. It was fought the day before Ft. Wagoner, SC (the movie “Glory” in 1989). Also, West of Butler on 52 Hwy. (exit 131 off of 49/71 hwy,) is the first unofficial site where several hundred African-Americans fought in 1862 at Island Mound, MO. It took some time before Washington, DC approved of their being soldiers, thus Indian Territory got credit for the first “official” battle where 700 African-Americans (the First Kansas Colored) fought and helped win the largest battle against the Confederates in Indian Territory. If you have an opportunity, please visit the Honey Springs Visitors Center and Battlefield. We now have eight great-grandchildren! Wishing “you all” an event-filled healthy and happy summer.

Keith Davis: I’ve been busy building a deck, working at the farm, fishing, etc. Just this afternoon we put our Montana friends on a plane to fly home after a week-long visit with us. We had a lot of fun with them fishing and visiting. Our grandkids are growing, and our oldest son and his wife are working on another adoption. I have a question for you old timers. I turn 65 this year, and this Medicare thing has me flummoxed. Looks to me like the whole thing is an expensive substitute for our present health insurance. You get part A automatically, but have to pay extra for part B and D. What do you get for it that is not already covered by our regular health insurance? Do most retirees continue their health insurance and pay for B too? Advice would be appreciated.
Bill Pauls: Life at the Lake of the Ozarks continues to be awesome! Kris and I are truly blessed. We just wound up Father’s Day with all our gang out in St. Louis at what I’m sure will become the annual family Father’s Day wiffleball extravaganza. Both dads were the captains, and I got picked 3rd to last. Jeff had to pick between his mother and his wife for last picked (Whoa!)—talk about a rock and a hard place. Guess who he picked? I am heading to AK for marathon #98 at the end of July. Our garden is starting to look good, with ‘maters, cucs, and radishes—mmm mmm mmm good. I did the 50-year high school class reunion last weekend, with a fun time reminiscing about the good ol’ days with the good ol’ boys and girls. Everyone, enjoy your summer and come visit anytime. We entertain a lot and are doing a whole lot of volunteering.

John Turner: I read this article this morning about how soil saves lives and thought it was pretty neat. I thought it might be good for a newsletter article (or link) for MAPSS or the NRCS Retirees’ News.
http://onpasture.com/2017/02/20/from-our-archives-soil-saves-lives/

Mike Blaine: The biggest news here in NEMO is we finally got some rain. We had received no rain of any significance since last October. The garden was just sitting there not growing, and the yard was shutting down. We finally got two inches of rain over a two-day period the second week of June. Things are greening up, and the garden is now looking better. It’s funny how the weeds can grow without water, though, isn’t it? Since last writing we have a new grandson, Hunter Michael Blaine, born to Jeremy and Jo Blaine. He is the first Blaine grandson in my line, so he is pretty special! Best wishes to all and God bless!

John Rice: It seems like much of our time is taken up with keeping up-to-date with our extended family, having children and grandchildren in four states: Missouri, North Carolina, Kansas and great grandchildren in Arizona. Volunteering is still a big thing for both of us. John is a member of Joseph L. Norton VFW Post 929 of Trenton and serves on their military honors team, serves as treasurer on the Grundy County Soil & Water Conservation District Board, is on our church’s building expansion committee, and Trenton’s Industrial Development Corporation. Well, you get the idea. The garden looks good so far, including a large sweet corn patch. I have most of the garden set up with a drip irrigation system. June and July are family reunion months, with one in June and two in July.

Plan now to attend the SCS/NRCS Annual Luncheon on September 14th, 2017 at the Senior Center in Columbia, MO (10am—2pm).

Montana Big Sky Report

Normally this time of year the retirees in Montana are catching fish to eat so they can make ends meet. But this year with the extra rains, the waters are high and cloudy so they can’t catch any fish. The only opportunity to get meat, unless they buy our delicious tender beef, is to harvest ground squirrels. The problem with harvesting ground squirrels in Bozeman is that you can’t hunt with your rifle within the city limits. Also, you can’t trap ground squirrels since you’ll probably catch the neighbor’s cat. All the NRCS retirees I know are harvesting ground squirrels using a sling shot. The way they hunt the squirrels is to sit in their lawn chair, since the squirrels in Bozeman are used to being near a lawn chair with a person sitting in the chair. I heard some of the retirees are such good squirrel hunters that they take some down to the Senior Center.

I also heard last week that Joyce Swartzendruber got 12 ground squirrels. Joyce hosted a high school reunion at her place in Bozeman last weekend. Twelve brave souls traveled from Iowa, Michigan, Indiana, and New York to enjoy eating Joyce’s fresh-caught Montana trout. Since there were no Montana trout to be had, the former high-schoolers sat in the yard with Joyce while she harvested the 12 ground squirrels. They barbequed the ground squirrels and were so impressed with the taste and Joyce’s sling shot ability, that next year they want Joyce to host the reunion, and they are all going to bring their sling shots and leave their fly rods home.

Gooby Ranch Report: On May 20th the Cliff Swallows showed up and started building their mud houses on our buildings. The husband and wife swallows work together to build their house. I can’t tell which one designs the house. On one end of the garage we have 20 houses being built. That means 40 Swallows are working on their houses. Since swallows eat about 200 mosquitoes a day, that means that one end of the garage is reducing our mosquitoes by 8,000 a day. Plus, the swallows need a lot of good clay soil. Mary Ann pushed the wheel barrow down to the river to get a load of clay soil for the home builders. We are only five miles from the river so it’s not a long trip for her. When Mary Ann parks the wheelbarrow in the yard, it is immediately full of swallows gathering building material. Every four days Mary Ann takes the wheel barrow down to get another load of building material.

Since it is early for the mosquitoes in our area, Mary Ann put out a lot of pans with water in them to grow mosquitoes for the swallows to eat. I decided to see how many mosquitos a pan produced. I started counting the larva, but they were transferring into mosquitos and flying off faster than I could count. So I gave up on that idea. Plus I got bit twice before the swallows got the little buggers. I would have had Mary Ann help me count them, but she was on her way back down to the river. Years ago the river was straightened out. Mary Ann is slowly building the curve back in the river one wheelbarrow load at a time.

We spent three days on a guided safari in a van with the top up and a personal guide. We spent four nights in tents in the savanna with no fence to keep out the animals. One night hyenas came into camp and chased a camp cat on top of the kid’s tent. Elephants, African buffalo, lions, leopards, baboons, and monkeys were seen close to or in camp."

The North Dakota SCS/NRCS retirees will be having our annual Reunion Luncheon at the Bismarck Elks Lodge Room at 11:30am on Thursday, September 14th, 2017.

On a sadder note, I recently lost my wife, Jeannie, to a stroke that she was unable to recover from. She was feeling great and had no indication of any problems. She was my life, and we did many things together and had planned to do many more. Anyone who ever met her could not help but admire her gentle, compassionate and caring way. To know her was to love her. I was very lucky to have her by my side for almost 30 years, and I am at a loss to where I go from here. Anyone who ever met her can't help but admire her gentle, compassionate, and caring way. To know her was to love her. I was very lucky to have her by my side for almost 30 years, and I am at a loss to where I go from here. It seems like I'm moon walking and getting nowhere, and I don't even know where I'm going. I thank those of you who sent cards or called. I really appreciate it. Please see her obituary in the In Memoriam section.

Jeannie M. Bird, 75, passed away peacefully at CHI St. Alexius Health in Bismarck, North Dakota on Thursday, May 4, 2017.

Submitted by Bob Parkinson: Greetings Fellow Retirees! No doubt your days are so busy now you likely just don’t have time for much else. But, if you did, have you ever considered doing your genealogy, especially during those cold winter months when you can warm your hands around a nice cup of hot coffee, hot tea or hot toddy as you do powerful research on-line from the comfort of your own home?

Still a relative newcomer to family history, I got bit by the genealogy bug back in 2011 when I retired, and I’m glad! Finding family factoids in retirement is way more fun than was finding arrowheads or edible mushrooms at work.

And you can get started in genealogy for free! Just log into Family Search, the largest collection of genealogy resources, records and family trees in the world! For free! There are billions of them! For free!

To get started, just type in your web browser: "http://www.familysearch.org." Create and then sign in to your free account and search away. Type in a surname and you’re off to the races! Easy-peasy, or as my old SCS boss, Niles McLoda, would say back in the 70s, "It works slicker than snot on a brass door knob!"

You can search on records, family trees, genealogies, the catalog, and books. There’s even a Family History Research Wiki at your disposal.

In May, I attended the National Genealogical Society 2017 Family History Conference in Raleigh, NC where some 2,000+ passionate attendees took in a full week of 170 presentations with more passion and dedication than a California convention center filled with Geographic Information System users! And that’s really sayin’ something!

But I digress. Suffice it to say the Raleigh conference was fantastic, where the beer was great and the darts good at the Big Boss Brewing Company, 1249-A Wicker Drive; and the smoked baby back ribs were finger-lickin’ good at The Pit, 328 W. Davie St.

In a subsequent article, I will touch on other sources of genealogical information that can help you pass more on to your descendants than just your DNA—your unique family’s history! Just think of the information and perspective you can provide to your grandchildren and their kids, especially useful for helping put down familial roots as well as 6th grade genealogy projects!

By the way, the 2018 conference will be held in Grand Rapids, MI. See you there? http://conference.ngsgenealogy.org/

Wayne Fjeseth is the Acting President for The Oklahoma Conservation Museum group and provided an update on recent activities. The museum will be named The Oklahoma Conservation Historical Society. The Oklahoma Historical Society will accept and display artifacts that are donated. The details of the written agreement are currently being worked out. There will be an independent board and a non-profit corporation. Prior to that being put in place, the Oklahoma Historical Society will be able to accept monetary contributions on behalf of the Oklahoma Conservation Historical Society. When the agreement is in place and details worked out, the announcement will be made to the public.

Please continue to talk to others about artifacts that might be available for loan or donation once the mechanism is established. Tom Lucas, who originally presented this concept, continues to work on this project and can be reached at 580-727-4397 or tom.lucas717@gmail.com.

Glen Mullen suggested a book titled Worst of Hard Times. It is about the hardships of the Dust Bowl. Dan Runnels reminded the group that April 27th, 2017, was the 82nd Anniversary of the creation of the Soil Conservation Service.

Bobby Smith continues to serve as an interim pastor to Baptist churches in the Medford Area. Stan and Fredia Rice work part time, volunteer at church, travel, enjoy grandkids’ activities, and spoiling their 1st great granddaughter. Darrell Wells does a lot of fishing, hunting, and gardening. Donald Qualls said he also does a lot of fishing, hunting, but added "sleeping." Pretty nice retirement, huh?

The next meeting is scheduled for Friday, October 27th, 2017, at the Golden Corral on MacArthur Boulevard in Oklahoma City. The Golden Corral now opens at 10am, so there is extra time for visiting before the meeting starts at 11:30am. Put it on your calendar now! Everyone is welcome and no reservations are required.

Bernelle Bailey attended the funeral of Lu Logan’s son. She has planned a trip to Amish country in October.

Dave Drennan and his wife were very thankful to be able to make their trip to California after all of his health issues. They got to visit the National Park Service site at Alcatraz. He got to meet an ex-con who wrote a book about the place. There were 29 escape attempts, and only three were never solved. They also toured wine country.

Dave Stockbridge will be attending his daughter Erika’s graduation where she will receive her doctor’s degree in Public Health Administration. She will then become a professor. Dave and Barb recently toured Europe with Don and Sue Deal. He said the long flight overseas will be his last! Dave picked up a cold and tried to get over it, instead of going to the doctor, and thus had to continue his interest in health issues and is taking an on-line course on mental health. His dog Rosie, who now weighs 81lbs, is behaving much better and only chewed up one wool sock since the last report. Dennis recently upgraded his boat with a 20hp Mercury motor, electric start (no more pullin’ the cable).

Doug Seibel reported that his wife’s health is much improved.

Don Newman passed away May 26th, 2017. Don worked 40 years for the USDA Soil Conservation Service (SCS) at Lubbock, Plainview, Hereford, Houston, Temple, Dallas, and Fort Worth, TX. See the In Memoriam section for more details.

Barbara Osgood prepared this report on the National Capital Area Spring Luncheon. Thanks Barbara.

“The Spring ARCSE Luncheon at the Ft. McNair Officer’s Club on May 4th included a great group of retirees and an excellent speaker. Retirees in attendance were Paul Benedict, Jerry Bernard, Bill Boyer, Janet and Carl Bouchard, Roger Cronshay, Douglas Helms, Tom Iivari, Bill Irwin, Bob Kohnke, Diana Morse, Barbara Osgood, Blanche and John Peterson, Frank Resides, Kendrick and Marc Safley, Lee Shields, and Ann and Ron Marlow. Our speaker from Headquarters was Frank Geter, who is team leader of a new group called Enterprise Business Initiatives. Frank gave us many interesting handouts on new programs and initiatives at NRCS. (Some of you may remember Frank’s Dad, John Geter, who is a retiree from NRCS.) Much to the delight of many of us old-timers, Frank talked about a renewed emphasis in NRCS on Conservation Planning.

Once all the formalities are completed, we always enjoy our personal updates, where everyone in attendance has a chance to update us on his or her recent activities, grandchildren, hobbies, travel, etc. It is always interesting to hear how people are spending their time in retirement—sometimes in very unexpected ways!

NOTE: There has been a change in the security check-in at the Ft. McNair gate. Guests now have to complete a brief information form to be given permission to enter. We hope we have made the process easier. For the next luncheon, we will send the form to you with your luncheon invitation, and you can return the completed form with your check to Diana. Once that is done, Diana will handle the rest, and your name should be on a list at the gate when you enter.
Our next luncheon will be on October 5th. Please mark your calendars now! Many thanks to Diana Morse, who does such a great job of processing checks and reservations, and to John Peterson, who always finds the best speakers! By the way, your humble National Capital Area Representative worked with John Geter in IN. I was the Watershed Planning Party Staff Leader in Paoli, and John was the Asst. State Engineer. Imagine my surprise when I picked Frank Geter up at USDA to bring him to the luncheon, and found out he was John’s son. It is a small world indeed.

John Peterson testified on the benefits of NRCS’s watershed programs before the House Ag Subcommittee on Conservation and Forestry on June 13th. John was asked to testify by the Subcommittee Chairman Frank Lucas (R OK-3rd), who knew John. John assisted Chairman Lucas as he championed the Small Watershed Rehabilitation Amendments (PL 106-472) passed in 2000, and John also directed the watershed program while with SCS.

He is also now the Chairman of the Northern Virginia Soil and Water Conservation District which is the co-sponsor of the Pohick Creek Watershed, and some Pohick Dams have been rehabilitated using the Rehabilitation Amendments. Deputy Chief for Programs Jimmy Bramblett testified for NRCS. The Spring ARCSE Luncheon at the Ft. McNair Officer’s Club on May 4th included a great group of retirees and an excellent speaker.

Douglas Helms combined his interests in history and Formula 1 racing on a trip to Europe, May 24th to June 7th. After staying in Nice and going to practice, qualifying, and the race in Monaco, he went to Seville, Gibraltar, and Madrid. Seville was a particular treat. Though 50 miles inland on the Guadalquivir River, it was the port city and seat of government during Spain’s period of exploration and colonization.

SENIOR CONSERVATIONIST CHRONICLE

Billy F. Headden, Senior Conservationist

Marc Safley, Chronicler, Senior Conservationist

Senior Conservationist Billy Headden was born September 25, 1933, at Yorkville, TN. Yorkville is a community in Gibson County and is about 50 miles northwest of Jackson in the western portion of Tennessee. Bill grew up on his family’s general agriculture farm where he learned to milk cows by hand and to pick cotton. Bill’s parents were early adopters of soil conservation on their farm. Bill attended local schools graduating from high school in 1951. Following high school, Bill enrolled in the University of Tennessee-Martin where he majored in General Agriculture. He graduated with a B.Sc. in 1955. During college he worked as an SCS Student Trainee in the summers of 1953 and 1954.

After graduation, Bill was hired as a Soil Conservationist at Jackson, TN, and worked there until May 9, 1956, when he entered service in the United States Army. He served until May 8, 1958, when he was honorably discharged. From 1958 until 1959 he worked as Soil Conservationist in the Lexington, TN, work unit. In 1959 he was promoted to Work Unit Conservationist at Lewisburg, TN. He held that position until 1961 when he took the job of District Conservationist at Somerville, TN. He held that position until 1966 when he took the job of District Conservationist for Madison County headquartered at Jackson. Bill was awarded a Kellogg Fellowship for graduate study in 1969. He enrolled at North Carolina State University and received a Master of Science degree in Agricultural Economics in 1970. Returning to Tennessee, he was Resource Conservationist for 21 West Tennessee counties. In 1971 he accepted a promotion to Area Conservationist for the Knoxville (TN) Area. Bill was there until 1974 when he accepted the position of State Resource Conservationist at the SCS state office in Nashville. Bill retired from that position on January 3, 1987. Bill’s SCS career took him from the rolling, loessial fields of West Tennessee to the mountain agriculture of East Tennessee. Following retirement from Federal service, Bill worked as a real estate broker, auctioneer, and appraiser until 1998.

Bill met his wife, Gayle Finley Headden, while he was working in Lewisburg. They married January 7, 1961. When Bill took the SRC job in 1974 they were able to settle down in the Cornersville, TN, area where, except for a few years in Lewisburg, they have continued to reside. Bill and Gayle have three sons, seven grandchildren, and three great-grandchildren. He reports that most of their extended family live within a 90-minute drive of their farm outside Cornersville. Bill and Gayle enjoy family get-togethers and traveling. They have visited 47 states and 27 countries on 4 continents. They also enjoy gardening and fishing in their managed farm pond. Bill says that the “fishing is free to friends and neighbors.” Bill believes that life is truly what you make it and that it is important to look ahead no matter what one’s stage of life. Doing good for others, keeping an inquiring mind, and having goals allow one to contribute all along the way.
